Break Sugar Cravings in 7 Days

$7-Day System to Break Sugar Cravings

Protein First

Lead With 30g

Start every meal with a dense protein source — not carbs. This creates satiety, fuels the brain, and lowers the volume on cravings within days.

Prevent the Crash

e"&
$Stable glucose means fewer cravings. kProtein regulates blood sugar, supports neurotransmitters like dopamine and serotonin, and keeps you full.

Neurotransmitters

<"D
BSugar cravings usually mean you’re under-fed, not over-indulged. @Fuel Neurotransmitters – Amino acids > artificial sugar highs.

Remove Triggers

Purge the Access

^_"".
,Willpower fails when sugar’s within reach. _ Your environment shapes your choices. Clean your pantry, your glove box, and your desk drawer.

Control the Cue

R""r
peplace the behavior — instead of grabbing candy under stress, sip bone broth, go for a walk, or chew mint gum.

Replace the Ritual

"Swap comfort loops, not just food. 9 Create a ritual that soothes you without sabotaging you.

Awareness

Hidden Sugars

Read labels. They lie n"F
DLook for hidden sugars in sauces, breads, and packaged health foods.

Track

U"@
>Track Without Judgment – Awareness creates space for change. kYou can’t change what you don’t see. Today is all about tracking your sugar intake with brutal honesty.

Notice emotional cravings — stress, boredom, and fatigue often wear a sugar mask. Write down what you eat, when, and why. This begins the process of separating you from the craving.

Brain Chemistry

Win Early

R"
Start with action,
du"
Complete a hard task early"".
, — movement, journaling, or cold exposure.

Nourish the Brain

Feed your chemistry, not your compulsion. TSugar is a counterfeit dopamine hit. Real dopamine comes from action, not addiction.

Rewire the Reward

Q"2
0Then eat foods that nourish your nervous system. 9"
New inputs, new outputs O. When you give your brain what it needs, it stops screaming for sugar to cope.

Intentional

Conscious Sweetness

Intentional > impulsive. D We’re not demonizing sweetness — we’re redefining the source.
?njoy a natural, nutrient-rich sweet (berries, raw honey, dates)

Normalization

"8
6Money flows to those who normalize making a lot of it.

Expansion

"a
_Money flows to those who know there is no limit to it and thus allow it to expand and multiply.

Identity Shift

Write Your Code

U"+
)Write your food philosophy. Make it real. Make it yours.

Lead With Clarity

Beliefs drive behavior. J Cravings may whisper, but now you have a framework to respond, not react.
You are not your craving.
st""A
?ou’re someone who chooses clarity, strength, and nourishment.

Crush Blood Sugar Spikes

Balance = Safety

Stable blood sugar = calm biology.
VX"H
F Your body will stop begging for sugar when it no longer fears famine.

Flatten the Curve

N"
Less crash = less craving . Even no""i ghealthy sugars like fruit can cause a crash when eaten alone. Keep your meals balanced and intentional.

No Naked Carbs

Carbs need company . Most cravings come from blood sugar chaos — a spike, a crash, then a reach for relief. Pair every carb with fat or protein to flatten that curve.
